

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 13, 2002

The New York Times

Arts

Galleries: Chelsea

DENNIS HOLLINGSWORTH, Nicole Klagsbrun, 526 West 26th Street, (212) 243-3335 (through Dec. 21). Paint seems to have an antic life of its own in Mr. Hollingsworth's viscerally lyrical abstractions. Brushed, drizzled, squeegeed, congealed, squeezed from the tube and formed into spiky buttons like sea urchins in a luscious range of colors, it coheres into off-kilter compositions that push to the limit tension between the seductively physical and the visionary (Johnson).